

Video title: “How important is it for you to be working for the Public good?”

This is a transcript of text in the video titled “How important is it for you to be working for the Public good?”

That's one of the main reasons I applied when I did to the Grad Programme.

That kind of not working for profit, and there is kind of, people do seem to care a little bit more about what they're doing because there is a big picture goal.

It's not just “let's make more money”.

Underlining everything you do day to day, you do feel like there's a purpose to your role and that you are working in the public interest and yeah, I think it just adds that nice little edge to it in terms of like differentiating it from other graduate programmes.

It's very evident that you are working towards the public good, and even though there's so many teams at the Bank working on different things, like it's all working towards that one goal, and I think it's definitely evident in the work that you do.

And the things you work on - there are also podcasts on RTÉ news. It's like nice coverage, I guess, like and recognition for what you do. I suppose, maybe.

Yeah, like I wake up every morning, and I turn on the radio, and a good few times you'll hear like, “The Central Bank Today...”

It's cool to hear. Like, whether it's the governor has made a statement, or there's been data released, or opinion pieces, like, you do feel like the Bank has a role to play in society, and it feels good being a part of that.